Not illustrated. 1877 Excerpt: . . . immature natures, the boys returned for something to eat. Though quiet, there could be no doubt about their contentment; their clothes were very dirty, and so were their faces, but out of the latter shone that indefinable something that is the easily read indication of the consciousness of rectitude and of satisfaction with the results of right-doing. They were not very communicative, even under considerable questioning, and Mr. Burton finally said, as one in a soliloquy: I wonder what it was What are you talking about, Harry asked Mrs. Burton. I am simply wondering what original and expensive experiment theyve been up to now, replied the head of the household. None whatever, said Mrs. Burton: I often wonder how men can be so blind. Look at their dear, pure little faces, dirty though they are; theres no more consciousness of wrong there than there could be...
