White, Californian, Citizen, Lawyer, Senator, Vol. 1 of 2: His Life and His Work The Senate having under consideration the bill (H. R. 75420) making appropriations for the naval service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1897, and for other purposes - Mr. White said: Mr. President: I desire to make a few suggestions in reference to the further construction of a Navy and as to the desirability of coast defenses. I concede the necessity for an adequate Navy ample to protect us in case of exigency, but when we are considering the question of appropriating money for naval purposes we ought not to forget the situation of the country with regard to the matter of coast defenses. Our Defenses Condition While it is universally admitted that the United States is not in a position for successful defense against any leading nation, I do not believe that the public appreciate the utter ineffectiveness of the means heretofore taken to guard our coasts and our property. The situation can hardly be exaggerated. In the event of armed contest with such powers as England or France we could not make even a respectable showing. General Miles, in a statement given by him before the Committee on Coast Defenses during the present Congress, sums up the situation thus: In my judgment, legislation is required to put the principal ports of the country in a proper condition of safety and in order to give them suitable protection. Senator Squire. Have you examined the condition of the fortifications that have been erected at any of the seaports? General Miles. Yes, sir; I have made it a question of...
